Notes:

(1) CFA Institute is a global, not-for-profit organization comprising the world's largest association of investment professionals. With over 100,000 members, and regional societies around the world, they are dedicated to developing and promoting the highest educational, ethical, and professional standards in the investment industry. CFA offers a range of educational and career resources, including the Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) and the Certificate in Investment Performance Measurement (CIPM) designations, and are a leading voice on global issues of fairness, market efficiency, and investor protection. The CFA Program is organized into three levels, each culminating in a six-hour exam. Completing the Program takes most candidates between two and five years. To earn a CFA charter, one must have four years of qualified investment work experience, become a member of CFA Institute, pledge to adhere to the CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct on an annual basis, apply for membership to a local CFA member society, and complete the CFA Program. More information about the CFA Institute and the CFA designation can be found at www.cfainstitute.org.

(2) The Chartered Market Technician (CMT) Program is a certification process in which candidates are required to demonstrate proficiency in a broad range of technical analysis subjects and is administered by the Accreditation Committee of the Market Technicians Association (MTA). The Program consists of three levels: CMT Level 1 & 2 are multiple choice exams while CMT Level 3 is in essay form. The MTA is a not-for-profit professional regulatory organization servicing over 3,900 market analysis professionals in over 75 countries around the globe. The MTA's main objectives involve the education of the public, the investment community and its membership in the theory, practice and application of technical analysis. More information about the MTA and its CMT program can be found at www.mta.org.

(3) The Investment Adviser Association (IAA) established the Chartered Investment Counselor (CIC) program in 1975, to recognize the qualifications of persons employed by IAA member firms whose primary duties are consistent with section 208(c) of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (pertaining to the use of the term "investment counsel"). A key educational component of the program is the requirement that candidates hold the CFA designation administered by the CFA Institute (see footnote #1). In addition to successful completion of the CFA program, the CIC designation requires candidates to demonstrate significant experience in performing investment counseling and portfolio management responsibilities. At the time the charter is awarded, candidates must be employed by an IAA member firm, must provide work and character references, must endorse the IAA's Standards of Practice, and must provide professional ethical information.
